

Project Win Honduras

Church-Planting with a Vision for the Future

*...he that winneth souls is wise.

The end (of calling) is in sight!

We have 65% of our 2021 calendar booked. God has blessed in this and we are looking forward to being in those churches next year. I know that many churches are struggling during this time, so it means a lot to us when a church is able to schedule a meeting with us, not knowing what the future may hold. What we can all know for sure is that God is not stopping. He wants all to hear about His Son Jesus Christ. Pray for us as we continue to Honduras. Pray that God would continue to give us opportunities to reach people while we are making our way to Honduras. We pray that we could influence young people to missions.

We had the opportunity to go to a Missions Conference in Arkansas the other week. We enjoyed our time there presenting our work with other missionaries. About an hour before the service on Saturday began I realized I had forgotten my dress shoes. They were over a ten-hour drive away back home in Georgia. I had to drive to Walmart at the last minute to buy some dress shoes. Thankfully it did not take too long to get there and find shoes that fit, something that will be harder to find when we are Honduras. I was able to make it back to the church about a half hour before the service began. I suppose it would be wise to keep that pair of shoes in the trunk of our car until Jesus comes back.

We also crossed paths at that same conference with a single lady missionary to Honduras, Rachel Kiefer, whom Amber has known for a couple years but hadn't seen in awhile, so she enjoyed introducing Rachel and I to each other and catching up on deputation news. One of the nice things about traveling is all the people we get to spend time with, new friends and old ones. Sometimes people in churches tell us, "It must be so hard to travel all the time," but although we do have our moments of difficulty (like when the radiator won't stop overheating, or we forget dress shoes) the truth is that we feel blessed to live the life we do. Ultimately, we want to be in Honduras, but in the meantime we are thanking God for allowing us to be in so many wonderful churches, and we thank you, too, for being a part of that.

Serving Christ,
