Happy New Year!

As we step into 2026, our hearts are full of gratitude for the many individuals, families, and churches who have walked with us, some for decades. You are not spectators in this work—you are partners. Much of what the Lord has done through this ministry has flowed directly from relationships built on prayer, trust, and a shared burden for the gospel.

From almost the beginning of our Missionary work, Bolivia has been central to our calling. For most of our ministry, the Lord has rooted us there, allowing deep relationships to form and lasting work to take shape. As that foundation has grown—through our involvement with BIO, LBU, and the Pastoral Network we established in 2020—the Lord has opened doors to other parts of the world. These newer opportunities are a testimony to God's faithfulness and to the steady growth of partnerships He has allowed us to build over time. Yet, our hearts are firmly rooted in Latin America... so is our focus.

One of the great encouragements as we enter this year is seeing how the work continues to mature. Our Pastoral Network now spans eight nations, bringing pastors together for encouragement, accountability, and training rooted in sound doctrine. We are prayerfully anticipating the possible addition of another nation in the coming months—not as rapid expansion, but as careful, relational growth.

We also rejoice in what the Lord has done recently in our work. In Bolivia, we saw two churches planted last year, strengthening the local witness and providing new centers for discipleship and leadership development. Across the broader scope of the ministry, we witnessed almost 500 people make a profession of faith in Christ. These are not just numbers to us—they represent lives changed, families reached, and churches strengthened through faithful Great Commission work.

As we move forward, our focus in 2026 is clear: intentional investment in key leaders, educators, and church planters, especially within Latin America. This includes strengthening recent church plants, continuing to train pastors, and helping start new gospel-centered ministries. We are convinced that when leaders are equipped well, churches are strengthened, and the gospel continues to advance long after any single season of life or ministry.

This conviction is anchored in the promise of Scripture: "I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase" (1 Corinthians 3:6). That truth has shaped our ministry from the beginning. We labor faithfully, we invest carefully, and we trust God to bring lasting fruit in His time.

Thank you for standing with us—churches, families, and individuals alike—as true partners in the work. We enter 2026 encouraged by what God has already done and confident in His continued leading. It is a privilege to walk this road with you.
